The July Sale of Muslin Underwear

BEGINS WEDNESDAY JULY FIFTH

THE ECONOMIST'S Muslin Underwear Sales are of a character so distinctly removed from the common as to attract instant and enthusiastic response on the part of all prudent buyers to whom the message of the interesting event comes.

MONTHS of most careful and thorough preparation provide not only the very choicest procurable examples of dainty, fascinating art in these lines, but a quality of materials and thoroughness in making which can be—and is—fully endorsed with this store's good name.

THERE is much saving in price because these events are planned for enlivening the business of a proverbially dull month, and profits are eliminated to a degree certain to attract quick response. In short, this sale means reliable undermuslins at the smallest prices.

WAGNER IS A KING AMONG FUTURE GREATS

HANS WAGNER.

Hans Wagner, the great Pittsburgh shortstop and slugging batsman, is one ball player who has grown weary of fame. The big Dutchman has become so well known around the National League circuit, that he has no peace when traveling. His room is always besieged by admirers, who ask him questions a Philadelphia lawyer could not answer. At the railway stations the crowds stare at him as if he were an Equitable director. Lajole is the only player who rivals Wagner in popularity.

But there is a side of Hans' character which is not generally known, and that is his love for children. At his home in Carnegie, the "kids" idolize the big fellow, and at every opportunity Hans slips away from Pittsburgh to play in the back lots of Carnegie with his young friends. There, as on the professional diamond, he is the center of attraction. Many a good meal the youngsters have missed to finish a game in which Honus was the star attraction.

Wagner doesn't care a rap for money. His check for the last month of last season reposes in Barney Dreyfuss' safe, where it will remain until needed—and Hans can't see any rainy days in sight.

Do You Want Strength?

If you want to increase your strength you must add to and not take from the physical. In other words, the food that you eat must be digested, assimilated and appropriated by the nerves, blood and tissues before being expelled from the intestine. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure adds to the physical. It gives strength to and builds up strength in the human system. It is pleasant to the taste and palatable, and the only combination of digestants that will digest the food and enable the system to appropriate all of its health and strength giving qualities. The pills that act as a tonic and not as a drastic purge are DeWitt's Little Early Risers. They cure Headache, Constipation, Biliousness, etc. Early Risers are small, easy to take and easy to act—a safe pill. Mark Hamilton, hotel clerk at Valley City, N. D., says: "I have bottles of these famous little pills cured me of chronic constipation. Good for children or adults. Sold by all druggists."

E. A. Fiske and sons and Thornton Victory have returned to Santa Fe from their camp near Monument Rock in the Santa Fe cañon. They are holding their own with other fishermen in regard to tales of the number and size of the fish caught.

Cholera Infantum.

Ruth, the little daughter of E. N. Dewey, of Agnewville, Va., was seriously ill of cholera infantum last summer. "We gave her up and did not expect her to live from one hour to another," he says. "It happened to think of Chamberlain's Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and got a bottle of it from the store. In five hours I saw a change for the better. We kept on giving it and before she had taken the half of one small bottle she was well." This remedy is for sale by all dealers.

TWO THOUSAND CAUGHT IN NET

Philadelphia, Pa., July 7.—Mayor Weaver's vice raid has shocked Philadelphia beyond anything that has occurred in this city. The ordinary citizen never even dreamed of the existence of such conditions.

That violators of the law, many of them men and women of good standing in the community, to the number of 2,000 or more, could be rounded up in a few hours, would have been regarded as utterly impossible. Weaver did it though, and the overflowing prisons testified to the shocking conditions of the under world.

Talk of the evil there has been a plenty; it has been a part of the crusade made by the few free newspapers against the ring that has controlled the city. It has been discounted, however, because of the claim that it was inspired by political prejudice.

Now, Weaver has laid bare the corruption. He has shown that "corrupt and contented" Philadelphia has applied not only to graft, but to lower forms of vice. He has proved, what those on the inside have known for years, and that is that Philadelphia has been the most open city in the country. Little has been heard of vice in the courts, because the criminals were not molested. They paid tribute to the police and politicians and were given full swing.

The result was a condition of affairs that would not be tolerated in any other American city. It was more open and rampant than existed in New York at the time of the Parkhurst raids.

To enumerate the evils would be simply to give a full list of the disorderly houses, opium joints and gambling resorts that have ever thrived in the large cities. All have for years been running in full blast. Temptation confronted the young and the weak on all sides. Weaver's raid has at last given the reign of lawlessness a check.

His remedy is a hard one. Homes have been broken. Men and women who have stood well, will go broad to their graves. To them the raid has brought a fearful penalty. The professionally lawless arrest is a less serious matter, simply a check to business.

Some of the swiftest and quietest flash houses in the town were among those that were raided. Men and women in evening clothes were among the prisoners, and so far as these were concerned, diamonds and other jewels were at a discount.

They had them to burn, but when it came to the crucial test there were few who had the price of a fine or even money enough to pay for a telephone or telegraph message.

Some of the scenes when the plain clothes men raided the houses, were almost beyond description. This is specially true of some of the room houses in the center and northwest sections of the city.

Young girls were found in various stages of dishevelment and their male companions were not better off so far as the quantity of clothing was concerned. Some of them were given opportunity to dress for the street, but there were others who were not dealt with so leniently, and disarranged and incomplete toilets were the rule rather than the exception.

In one instance a man and his companion were hustled from one of the houses to the station, and when they

Time Tells the Story

There is a big difference between a first-class sewing-machine, embodying the best of materials and workmanship, and one which is made in the cheapest manner. The buyer of the cheaper machine soon pays the difference of price in the constant cost for repairs, to say nothing of its annoying inefficiency.

were man and wife and lived in Trenton and that they had been sent to the place which had been represented to them as a lodging house. No credence was given to their story, and $300 had been the decision as to the woman and a $25 fine so far as the man was concerned. The fine was paid, but it was late in the day before a bondman could be found for the wife. Their story, by the way, was true, but the fact that they did not carry their marriage certificate with them proved disastrous.

There was another case which attracted attention. A very pretty young woman had been arrested and held to bail. Her companion hurried away to get some one to secure the girl's release. During his absence the girl made one of the most impassioned appeals imaginable, for freedom, but the magistrate was an adamant.

"My husband will kill me if he hears of this," she wailed.

"The judge picked up his ears at this, and inquired: "Your husband?"

"Yes, he will shoot me, as he ought," and the girl—she was scarcely 20—lost herself in the crowd.

In many cases the women, when the police rushed into the rooms and announced that they were under arrest, made frantic efforts to escape. One sought to leap from a fourth-story window, and was pulled back by the heels.

In one house, eight prominent business men were captured, and the lieutenant, without consulting his superiors, is said to have allowed the men to go. For doing so he has been summoned before the police court of inquiry and may lose his job.

In another house the police found an even more prominent merchant, and in his company was the forewoman of the shoe department of one of the big department stores of the city.

Throughout the night there was scurrying to get money for bonds and to pay fines.
